MARCH 22 REGISTRATION DEADLINE FOR DAIRY LEADERS OF TOMORROW FARM TOUR

High School Students Encouraged to Participate in Free Dairy Farm Tour

Harrisburg, Pa. – The registration deadline of Wednesday, March 22, is fast approaching for the Dairy Leaders of Tomorrow spring farm tour. High school students interested in dairy industry careers are invited to attend a day-long tour on Wednesday, April 5, of two dairy farms and a large equipment dealership in southwest Pennsylvania. Students will gain firsthand knowledge of modern working dairy farms in Westmoreland and Somerset counties, while also highlighting careers and technology within agriculture.

The two farms featured on the tour will display different but successful dairy management styles that employ modern dairy technologies. Mike and Vickie Baker will host the tour group on their farm, Maple Bottom Dairy, in Scottdale. The Bakers own and operate a 75-cow dairy with a DeLaval Voluntary Milking System (VMS). The Stoltzfus family, of Pennwood Dairy in Somerset County, milks more than 500 cows and use an anaerobic digester, which separates manure solids that are used for cow bedding.

In addition to touring the dairy facilities, students will travel to West Central Equipment's Somerset location for lunch and to learn about career opportunities within large equipment technology. During the meal, industry professionals will share information about their experiences and role in the dairy industry.

Educators must register students for the Dairy Leaders of Tomorrow Farm Tour by Wednesday, March 22. Charter buses will be available for student and chaperone pick-up at the Tractor Supply Companies in both Everett and Gibsonia, as well as the Walmart Supercenter in Altoona.

More information about the tour can be found by visiting the "Educational Experiences" tab at dairyleadersoftomorrow.com and selecting the "Dairy Leaders Farm Tour" on the left side menu.
