AGRICULTURE PROFESSIONALS INVITED TO FREE MENTAL HEALTH WORKSHOPS

The Workshops Will Help Ag Professionals Gain Specific Skills for Navigating Mental Wellness in the Farm Community

Harrisburg, Pa. – Agriculture professionals who work directly with Pennsylvania livestock producers are invited to attend any of the six free mental health workshops happening throughout March and April. The interactive workshops will provide information on stressors that are specific to the agriculture industry and provide hands-on training to help navigate mental health issues in the farm community.

"Most ag industry professionals are frequently on farms and in contact with producers every day, so they are tuned into when times are challenging and producers might be struggling. Typically, ag industry professionals are trained in production agriculture and not human health and well-being," said Ginger Fenton, PhD, Dairy Extension Educator at Penn State Extension, and one of the presenters at the workshops. "The goal of these workshops is to help prepare ag industry professionals to recognize stressful situations and to be better equipped to provide tools and resources to share with farmers in times of need."

Six free workshops will be held across Pennsylvania throughout March and April. The events will be held on the following dates:

- Tuesday, March 1 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Chambersburg Hoss's Steak and Sea House
 Falling Spring Road Chambersburg, PA 17201
- Tuesday, March 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Lewisburg

- Tuesday, March 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Greensburg Hoss's Steak and Sea House 1261 S. Main Street Greensburg, PA 15601

- Tuesday, April 26 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Honesdale Wayne County Extension Office 648 Park Street, Suite E. Honesdale, PA 18431

During each workshop, attendees will learn about the stressors that are specific to the ag industry and how to recognize signs of stress. They will also be trained on how to assess, approach, and offer assistance to farmers who are at risk and learn about the variety of tools and resources available for farmers.

"These workshops are ideal for anyone who is in contact with livestock producers and is concerned about their mental wellness and overall well-being. This might include lenders, ag agency personnel, nutritionists, inspectors and regulatory staff, veterinarians, educators, consultants, agronomists, and other ag industry professionals or farm family members," Fenton added.
