

Nearly a decade ago I stepped into a milking parlor for the first time. Since then, spending time with cows and promoting the industry has been my stress relief, my happy place, and my passion.

Why am I passionate about the industry? It is because of the people and farm families that have guided me along the way that I have been able to grow my love of the industry into a career and a life that I love. These people have motivated me to pursue a career in dairy, and I hope to be that inspiration for young dairy producers and professionals in the years to come. Some of the biggest blessings in my life are the farm families I have worked for over the years. The kids that come from these families grow to be successful, driven, and hardworking individuals because of their upbringing, and I hope to teach my daughters those same skills and life lessons that I have witnessed on the farm. #WhatsYourWhy

–Katie Waite

